Milan Will Not Accompany Team On Next Trip; Month to Recover

DOUBLE FRACTURE IS NOW DISCLOSED

Star Center Fielder Expected to Join Teammates in Philadelphia August 13.

By THOMAS KIRBY.

Clyde Milan will not go West with the Nationals on the trip which starts next Thursday.

The original report from the surgeons was that Milan had simply chipped a bone in the back of his mouth. Today's report, however, was that the player had suffered a double fracture—one in his chin and the other near the hinge of his jaw. This was brought out by an inspection of a couple of dozen x-ray photographs which were taken Saturday.

The center fielder is overanxious to get back into the line-up since he recovered from the shock of the collision, and Griffith insisted today that while he will be deprived of the services of his star during the coming invasion of the other side of the league, Milan will be available by the time the team hits the Eastern section of the trail by opening a set with the Athletics at Philadelphia on August 13.

Practically the whole Washington club called at Clyde Milan's home in Lanier place yesterday. They found the ailing athlete progressing as well as might be expected.

Griffith's present plans are to continue "Cubs" Acosta in left field, leaving Shanks to guard the middle section of the outfield.

As there were no games in the American League yesterday, the clubs today stand just as they did twenty-four hours ago, the Nationals being third by eight points and lacking sixteen to being tied for the second position in the palpitating race that is being fought out by the clubs under Ban Johnson.

After having been badly scared during the greater part of last week, the Philadelphia Athletics finally got in enough real hits to go out in front to such an extent that they now have a comparatively safe lead, although it seems improbable that they will be able to continue to profit through the season's end.

There are now fewer points between the leaders and the sixth club than there were last week at this time between first and second place.

So much interest has attached to the American League race that many folks have overlooked the fact that in the National League there is also a sizzling battle.

While New York was almost universally picked to repeat, the Giants now have less than forty points separating them from the Chicago Cubs, who are battling for the front, and St. Louis.

Although execrable weakness in hitting when there was a chance to turn the tide in the three games they lost, the Nationals had thirty-eight hits to their credit last week. Out of these drives they obtained but sixteen runs, while the Athletics' harvest from twenty-seven hits was nineteen runs.

Ninth Inning Rally Is Enough for the Cardinals ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 20.—A ninth-inning rally gave the Cardinals a victory over the Phillies yesterday before a large crowd. The Dons have scored two runs in their half, and looked to have the game clinched when Huggins' troupe came to bat. Rigert and Miller were on with one down when Beck hoisted a triple, scoring them both and evening the count. Snyder's single sent Beck across with the winning run. Eppa Rixey, the lanky southpaw, was driven to the showers in that frame by the sturdy clothing of the Cards. The score: R. H. E. Times' Baseball Team Gets 21 to 18 Verdict

Any errors of omission or commission appearing in at least two of Washington's dailies within a period sufficient to recover from nine innings' worth of stiffened joints can attract attention to the three hours of baseball played at American League Park between the winners of the Times and Post Sunday afternoon, when the afternoon newspapermen are alleged to have won by statistics of something like 21 to 18. However, emphatically these figures may be protested by the gentlemen whose presses get a twelve-hour start on the five pitchers used by the winners, who no game played in the Florida avenue inclosure has developed so many twirlers of unquestioned inability. The best of the lot, however, was a two-thirds of the ninth inning with an umpire's mumble about the fact that he was not planted immediately back of second base to stop Sam Woods' pegs. The score by innings as follows: R. H. E. Washington Post 23 000 064-18 9 9 Washington Times 207 140 238-21 39 4 Batteries—Acosta and Jimenez; Hoch and Jenkins.

Browns Fail to Corral Hit Off Cuban Pitcher

LONG BRANCH, N. J., July 20.—Jose Acosta, the youthful Cuban twirler of the local team, shut out the St. Louis Browns yesterday without a run or hit. Long Branch winning by the score of 3 to 0. Acosta pitched a truly remarkable game, only two of the Browns getting on the paths and only one reaching second base. His control was perfect, he did not issue a pass and only twelve bad balls were called on him during the entire game. This is the third big league game Acosta has won, having beaten the Browns yesterday and also the Giants. Score by innings: R. H. E. Long Branch 009 026 015—10 2 0 St. Louis 000 000 000—0 0 0 Batteries—Acosta and Jimenez; Hoch and Jenkins.
